The decisions of the railroad inbor board are in compliance with a mandate of the law-making body of the United States. Without discussing the decisions at issue, it is fair to assume that a government agency is ever ready to correct an error which is made, else government itself would become unjust. Moreover, it is in-disputable that there can be no gov-ornment unless its mandates are ac-cepted by the citizenship of the re-public. This observation relates more particularly to the railroad situation.
